

How to learn foreign languages

Contributed by Administrator
Monday, 02 March 2009
Last Updated Monday, 02 March 2009

The Swedish grammar is the biggest problem. As English is the most difficult to overcome language barriers. Persons learners of Spanish and Italian make trouble understanding speech inhabitants of those countries where there are. The pace of foreign language learning depends on individual predisposition. However, you can determine what causes students difficulties in learning various languages.

People who learn German and Swedish grammar causes the most trouble. This is because it is difficult to apply them to the rules in practice. The German will be an additional problem assimilate. German nouns often appear in other than in English. Nor is it easy word to learn the language and pronunciation that is creating long, complex nouns.

Learning the German language prompted me share in German manufacturing. By casting the movie "The love does not win" I went knowing by heart a few pages of text, but I got this role. Learning the language was not easy, since both the pronunciation, and syntax quite different from the english language. In order not to discourage, it is to know exactly what you want to learn how and why are you doing this. Motivation is very important. When we learn the language should be used all the possibilities that everyday life offers us. For example, the viewing of foreign language channels on television, reading newspapers and books or listening to the radio is the perfect way to learn.

Not everyone, however, language is regarded as difficult to learn. Poles willing to learn Italian and Spanish, and consider them to be fairly easy to master. Its Latin origin, the faster remembers vocabulary. Italians often say that the Polish people speak their language without a foreign accent. This obstacle with which they find teaching these languages, find out until after his departure to their countries of Latin America. In science, the French are the two most difficult first years. It is difficult to rule discourage the French pronunciation, accent and grammar.